Contents

Editorial ......................................................................................................................... 93

Herman HOEN, Good Governance in Central and Eastern Europe: the European Union as an anchor for reform ................................................................. 95

Joost PLATJE, Economic Development and Environmental Protection – the need for more equal income distribution for achieving sustainable development from an economic and fairness perspective .............................................. 113

Herman HOEN, Groningen University (Groningen, The Netherlands), ‘Transitology’ - the revival of geographic-economic research on transition in Central and Eastern Europe ......................................................................................... 135

Judith MARQUAND, Sergey KOSTAREV, Sustainable Development in Omsk – lessons for Central Europe .................................................................................... 153

Nienke DE DEUGD, Sustainable Development in Ukraine: the role of internal and external actors in the policy making process .................................................... 167

Judith MARQUAND, Has Russia an Environmental Policy? The case of the Tomsk regional ecological committee ............................................................. 183

Renata MATUSZKIEWICZ, How to Develop in a Sustainable Way – some problems related to social cohesion in Kazakhstan .................................................... 199